

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force its 62 local stations to air an anti-Kerry message without any response from the Kerry camp is a flagrant violation of regulations. I can understand the promotion of their views, but Sinclair is also under obligation to give equal time since it can operate over the air waves free of charge.

This kind of restricted information is detrimental to our way of life, and unfortunately it seems to be eroding more quickly these past few years with those with strong beliefs wanting to prevent an opposing view point.

It is time for the FCC to really enforce the campaign laws which were intended to keep our elections free.

Sincerely,
Kenneth R. Stiger
